

Abstract of the Disclosure

[00035] An atomic layer deposition process is described in which precursor gases including species used to form monatomic layers are quickly alternated as to allow the atomic layer deposition process to be conducted with fast cycle time.